Judge Wylle, in the Equity Court, recently decided a very interesting legal question. He was asked to enjoin the proposed auction sale of certain real estate by the heirs-at-law of a deceased trustee, on the ground that the said heirs were not competent to execute the trust as heirs-at-law. At the hearing the Judge denied the injunction and delivered an opinion favorable to a sale by the heirs-at-law, they all being of lawful age. othed this month, and in the other case a sneak oferwas discovered by a servant girt while he as getting into the second-atory wholes we of 166 Massachusetts avenue northwest. "The World" and "Janauschek." "The Bohemian Girl" has long been consider one of the most popular of English operas, but it has never been sung here as it was rendered but night at Ford's Opera-House by the Boston ideal Opera Company, Miss Marie Stone made a graceful and pleasing Arine, and Miss Lizzie Burton was effective as the Gypsy Queza. Tom Kail was sufficiently handing play of "Yorick's Love" (adapted from the Spanish by Howell), which is considered one of the best plays in this eminent tragedian's reper the best plays in this eminent tragedian's repertoire. "A play within a play," it appeals to all the passions that animate the human breast. In quick transition it passes from grave to gay, from jest to terrible carnestness, and in Mr. Barrett's hands the sympathies of the audience become absorbingly aroused. The portraiture is one that none but a Barrett could conceive in all its perfection, and its presentation leaves an ladelible impression upon one's mind for all time. From the rising of the curiain until the thrilling and effective climax is reached, when Porick slays his adopted son Edmand (Otis Skinner) which his mind is poisoned by Master Walton

(Mr. James) with the statement of his wife's (Miss Wainwright) faithlessness and that Edmand is her lover, and then impales himself upon Heyecoof's
(Mr. Bock) sword, the audience tollowed the netion of the play with breathless attention. Miss (Mr. Bock) sword, the audience followed the ac-tion of the play with breathless attention. Miss Marie Wainwright added to former well-deserved lannels by a superior conception of the part of Mis-tress Alter, while Messrs, James, Skinner, Bock, and Rodgers of the male support were conspicuously excellent. "Harebell; or, The Man o' Airlie" will be given at to-day's mailuee and "Righelleu" this evening.

The National Theatre will have for its attraction next Monday night the spectacular drama, which has made so great an impression in London and New York, "The World." It is the first scientific attempt at literally moulding together romance ritt, Henry Pettitt, and Augustus Harris, conceived the idea from Jules Verne's marvelous tales: wherever they found it, it was a good idea, and has been ingeniously and effectively carried out. The dram is not subordinated to the specialty, nor the speciatele to the drama. Each is consist-ently maintained; but the surprises are most fre-quent and must lusting in the specialty. The meently maintained; but the surprises are most frequent and most lasting in the spectacle. The mechanical devices employed are, many of them novel, and the realism of the spectacle is solunding in several of the upisades. It is quite needless to add that "The World" will be presented at the National with absolute fidelity to the original designs; the mounting has involved weeks of labor, and exhausted the vraft of the scene painters and mechanics.

By announcement elsewhere it will be seen that the great tragedionne, Janauschok, begins her annual engagement in Washington at Ford's Opera-House on Monday evening, January 23, She will initiate her season by a presentation of Schiller's historical play, "Mary Sinari, fallowed by "Bleak House," "Mother and Son," The Winter's Tale," and "Deborah" during the first week. It is said that Januachak has the finest company over engaged by her, and certainly has won greater atteces this season thun ever before, judging from reports from the other large cities of the country.

"I'm on my way home with coffee and tea caough to last the family till Arthur is inaugurated in 1881, and I've got watches and jewelry enough to sarrt a small sized jewelry story," said the man of family.

"Where did you make the raise?"

"At the tea store, next door to Perry's, Ninth and the Avenue."

"What did it cost you?"

"I invested a dollar first for coffee. I got a good silver watch as a prize; then I kept on investing for tea and coffee alternately until I was saidsfied. I laid out ten dollars and I'm sure I realized a hundred dollars' worth besides the coffee and tea."

Our emissary immediately proceeded to the story, and while it cost him a struggle to invest a whole dollar for such dry groceries as coffee and tea he did It, and found in the top of the box what beteelive Miller would call a "white super" or a "ticker." He will now be able to tell what time to get up in the morning.
